DON'T FEED DEER AND ELK

Well-intentioned people often feed deer, elk and other wildlife without realizing the problems feeding can create:

- Artificial feeding concentrates wildlife, which leads to the easier spread of disease and parasites and easier take by predators.
- Feeding deer and elk attracts their natural predators like cougars and coyotes to areas of human activity.
- Once wildlife associate people with giving them food, they come to expect it. Feeding will invite more deer and elk to your property and encourage them to stay.
- Artificial feeding can cause deer and elk to become habituated to humans and aggressive towards them.
- Concentrating deer and elk in human-settled areas can lead to an increase in vehicle collisions and conflicts between wildlife and pets.
- Concentrating deer and elk can hurt habitat by encouraging excessive grazing.

Every year, ODFW also sees seemingly healthy deer and elk die because they have been fed the wrong food by well-intentioned people. Their diet requirements actually change with the seasons and are best met by native forage. Deliberately feeding deer or elk may inhibit digestion and lead to death by starvation or infection.

ODFW does feed deer and elk at several wildlife areas during the winter, to keep them off adjacent agricultural lands where they damage crops. These feeding programs are long-term commitments that require significant financial and staffing resources. Feeding starts early in the season so deer and elk's digestive systems do not have to quickly readjust to new food types, and continues every day, no matter what, until forage conditions improve. Feeding areas are located away from human-populated areas to decrease conflicts. ODFW also conducts disease testing at some feeding sites.

OREGON DEPARTMENT OF FISH AND WILDLIFE

City Council Meeting Request

Prohibit the attracting or feeding of elk

- In the interest of public safety and the elk herd, I respectfully request that Gearhart City Council draft and enact an ordinance to prohibit the feeding of elk.
- I have been learning about and following the elk concerns that affect Gearhart and the Clatsop Plains.
- I attended both the Gearhart ODFW informational meeting and the Warrenton Town Hall a few months ago.
- From the Warrenton meeting it was clear that feeding the elk (e.g. hand feeding apples) habituated the elk to viewing humans as a food source and no longer having a natural fear of humans.
- There were instances where people were being followed by elk thinking that the humans were going to feed them which then resulted in elk becoming aggressive and necessitated that at least one elk be killed. It was later learned that this particular elk had been hand fed by a Warrenton resident who loved the elk.
- In order to avoid injury, humans and elk must keep their distance from each other.
- In order to avoid injury, humans must not be seen as a source of food.
- Warrenton has a wildlife ordinance in effect that addresses and prohibits the feeding of all manner of wildlife.
- I have copies of the Warrenton ordinance (chapter 6.09) for council, the mayor and administrator.
- If I may, I propose that a Gearhart ordinance only address the issue of feeding elk.
- Since elk pose the greatest risk to humans, in my view, prohibiting the feeding of elk is the most urgent issue.
- Other wildlife do not pose the same threat. I would expect that the people of Gearhart will have many varied opinions on whether or not to feed other wildlife as defined in the Warrenton ordinance so we can save a lot of discussion and dissension if we focus on the elk issue alone.
- For these reasons, I request that council address the singular issue of feeding elk in drafting the ordinance.
- In closing, please do both humans and elk a favor — do not feed the elk.
